Description :

Prsentation de l'diteur Fabulous Value - Three crime books in one compendium Death in the Pyrenees is a compilation of the first three books of the series. Each book is a complete story in its own right with Danielle's life progressing as the series develops. The stories give a taste of life in a small French town with its ups and downs and highs and lows. It's quirky and quaint and sometimes dead including Palm Trees in the Pyrenees Grass Grows in th Pyrenees Red Light in the Pyrenees Palm Trees in the Pyrenees - gives you an insight into the workings and atmosphere of small town France against a background of gender, sexual, racial and religious prejudice. The story unfolds, told by Danielle a single, downtrodden , thirty year old, who is the only cop in the small Pyrenean town. She feels unappreciated and unnoticed, having been passed over for promotion in favour of her male colleagues working in the region. But everything is about to change. The sudden and mysterious death of a much hated locally based Englishman will have far reaching affects. Take one rooky female cop Add a dash or two of mysterious death And a heap of prejudice and suspicion Place all in a small French spa town And stir well Turn up the heat And simmer until thoroughly cooked The result will be surprising Grass Grows in the Pyrenees - takes Danielle's adventures into the surrounding mountains, in the Eastern Pyrenees. The story unfolds following the sudden and mysterious death of a local farmer suspected of growing cannabis and this opens a 'Pandoras box of trouble. Its a race against time to stop ruthless gangsters before the town, and everyone in it, is damaged beyond repair. Take one female cop and Add a dash of power Throw in a dangerous gangster Some violent men And a whole bunch of cannabis Sprinkle around a small French spa town And mix thoroughly Cook on a hot grill until the truth is revealed Red light in the Pyrenees- is third in the series. The sudden and violent death of a local Madam brings fear to her working girls and unsettles the town. But doesnt every cloud have a silver lining? Danielle follows the twists and turns of events until a surprising truth is revealed. Hold your breath, its a bumpy ride. Red Light in the Pyrenees Take one respected female cop Add two or three drops of violent death Some ladies of the night And a bucket full of blood Place all in, and around, a small French spa town Stir constantly with money and greed Until all becomes clear The result will be very satisfying Scroll up and grab a copy today.
